This three part frame dwelling, located on Hills Point Cove west of the village of Thomas, is two and one-half storys tall with two, one and one-half story wings. The house is covered with asbestos siding and asphalt roofing and is constructed on brick piers. The main body of the house is assymetrical, though it is three bays long with central door, and has two dormers on the attic. Its north wing is two bays long with two dormers and the south wing is only one bay long, but almost the same size as the former. On the north end of the main portion of the house is a brick chimney, the south chimney being within the gable. The size of the dormers on the north wing may indicate a recent date for the construction of that wing.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The O'Connor house is a good building built during the mid-19th century. It is very similar to its neighbor, the Ellsworth Marshall dwelling, as well as Kilmaurie near Cornersville. The house represents the transition from the fully handmade quality of the vernacular house to the mass produced house.
